Data Informed. Results-Oriented. Mission Driven.

Amanda Lopez is a passionate entrepreneur, speaker, and consultant in the nonprofit, government, and education sectors. For over twenty years, organizations have hired Amanda for transformational projects that include program expansion strategies, organizational alignment, strategic planning, program feasibility studies, fundraising strategies, and bringing together community leaders and individuals to drive meaningful and intentional change and outcomes for all.

Amanda Lopez took the leap in 2008 to move from a top practitioner in her space to launch Transform Consulting Group (TCG). Today, TCG is one of the most sought-after national consultancies for organizations looking to transform their people, communities, and the lives of those they serve. As President and Founder of TCG, Amanda speaks nationally about putting the power of data to work to drive change and accelerate impact.

Guided by the best practices and standards TCG has developed, organizations like the Boys and Girls Club of America, YUSA, the National Head Start Association, United Way of Central Indiana, the Community Foundation of Greater Ft. Wayne, and Welborn Baptist Foundation to continue to experience measurable outcomes; ultimately driving funding, mission awareness and outreach, and sustainability to ensure their critical work continues to advance and drive transformational impact.

Previously, Ms. Lopez worked for the Association of Community Human Service Agencies in Los Angeles, California, and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services' Office of the Budget, the Children's Bureau, and the Head Start Bureau in Washington, DC. She holds a Masters of Social Work with a focus on policy and evaluation from the University of Michigan and a Bachelor's degree in Law and Society from Purdue University.

Amanda was the first recipient of the Purdue University Emerging Voice Alumni Award for outstanding young professionals under 40 years old in 2007.

Amanda now resides with her family in Wabash, Indiana – her hometown. As a firm believer that change starts within your community, she passionately volunteers and serves on multiple boards and committees in her community.
